FOREWORD

"Now everybody smile - that's nice - hold it! -- another please - someone moved." And so goes the life of a photographer. In our attempt to show you the students and activities of this year through the eye of the camera, there has been extra work for the photographers and less for the writers. On a few pages you will find a new type of mounting, photomontage, to add to the variety of the 1939 Hi-Life.

In this issue our theme is in observance of Washington's Centennial. As you look through the pages, think of Washington and its school one hundred years ago.

G. C. MILLER

Mr. E. A. Ralston has proved his competence in his four years as Superintendent of Schools. He has taken an active interest in promoting the present grade school building program and has shown a general enthusiasm for all high school activities.

His decisive manner, his energetic nature, and his ringing laughter have found favor with the students and teachers of Washington Public Schools.

In his first year as principal of Washington High School, Mr. George Fields has introduced some changes, as starting a new home room system and organizing a student assembly. He has also tried to create an interest in student participation in school activities.

His intelligence, his ability to understand, and his sense of humor have made him well liked by the faculty and student body.

HOME ROOMS

This year, with the coming of our new principal, Mr. Fields, we have a new system. Every morning from 8:45 to 9:05 each student goes to his home room. During this brief period the announcements are made, and every week a different program is sent from the office to be read and discussed. Many helpful and interesting ideas and facts are presented to the students for their thought and consideration. The discussion generally proves entertaining and revealing, giving the students a chance to express their own opinions.

Some of the bulletins during the year included discussions on fallacies, propaganda, punctuality, voting, honesty, self-sacrifice, companionship, personality, and manners.

During the year the home rooms held parties and picnics either singly or in combination with other groups, thus creating better fellowship by bringing students together who would not be in contact otherwise.

CLASSES AT WORK

"Oh, say! can you see—" the high school band softly plays as the student body sings—a moment's silence—a cannon booms—the town clock strikes eleven—the flag is at half-mast and another Armistice Day is observed—a symbol of Freedom and Democracy and Liberty, never-to-be forgotten by American Youth.

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and His name shall be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace." (Isaiah 9:6)—"Joy to the world! the Lord is come!" "The Nativity," a frieze, presented by the musical department of the high school, by solo and group singing, brought to the hearts of the people the story of the Redeemer's birth, and new hope to mankind.

If a straight line is shorter than a crooked one and we want the shortest possible distance from  $x$  to  $c$ , we use the crooked one—ah, shucks!—but regardless of the puzzled expression upon the countenance of each member of the mechanical drawing class, we don't wonder but what they would still know a good deal more about mechanics and their structure than we will ever learn.

"So o-o whtstle while you work! Tra-la, la-la-la-la!" Energy, optimistic vitality, and true merry dispositions help to make polishing and cleaning furniture a pleasant task. The home economics department, under direction of Miss Grace Randell has as its project this year the decorating and furnishing the girls' rest room. Needles, thread, pins, scissors, mending cotton, new linoleum, chairs, cot, desk, table, new curtains, and of course, girls' interior.

Radio—a marvel of the ages, and a joy to any boy, was explained to the sophomore English class, and proved to be exceptionally interesting to even the none-too-much-naturally-inclined girls. Nobody knows everything. Therefore, there is always something to learn. A demonstration, given by each student, is one way of accomplishing this aim. Of course, there are other things to be done; including the study of the adventures of Odysseus, Shakespeare's "Julius Cesar," and by all means, grammar.

A— and triangles—
— and lines and circles dances among the cobwebs of the geometrically-inclined student's mind—the slide rule continues to give its equations correctly—and mathematics rides merrily on through the years at W. H. S.

Physics is reasoning with nature. These scientific students are studying the fundamental forces of matter and molecules, mechanics, motion, gravitation, energy, and many other forces. One problem four minds and a solution maybe!

Question number 97 and another government test is in the making—"bless your buttons," if you won't be glad you know something of how the affairs of the nation are managed. City, county, state and national organization is discussed, and seniors are prepared to go forth to the world as better citizens.

"The present—a repetition of the past" living wisely with current social and political problems necessitates a well-rounded and accurate knowledge of history. For this reason, all students are required to study this subject before graduation, thus fitting them for the future, when the destiny of a great nation rests in their hands.

Hands—that so often reveal a person's character—are shown at work in the laboratory. We wonder what the hands of Lister and Pasteur were like. Are the fingers of some future scientist, or merely those of student whose present interest lies in the discovery of the intricate and more delicate yet majestically beautiful part of God's great and vast creation?"

"Books are the food of youth and the delight of old age." Cicero. The Washington High School Library is equipped with books of unusual quality, many volumes being donated by the Carnegie Fund which was presented to the Junior College for this purpose. Current magazines concerning educational and recreational topics are always to be found upon the shelves that is, unless everyone is reading them.

Gaul—is divided—in—three parts; er—ah, who can't into Latin, anyway? Many a student, while vainly striving to conjugate a verb, and wondering why he took the course, finds to his surprise a sudden ascending of his English grades, a better understanding of the English vocabulary, and a more broadened knowledge of ancient Roman history. Besides, Latin, like other subjects, is not difficult if you study that is, for some people

COMMERCIAL CLUB

In our Commercial Club, students are given the opportunity to hear what business men want when they hire workers, as well as the opportunity to enjoy their work. Miss Della Patton and Mr. Ralph Le Moine are capable and helpful advisers. With the help of the officers, Robert Masson, president, Phyllis Crane, vice president, Lucille Murphy, secretary and treasurer, and Mabel Atwood, reporter, the club takes an active part in school activities.

TYPING CLASSES

Many young people are learning to type in order to get work. Many others are learning to type to help them in their studies. Many others are learning to type to help those who intend to go to college or to help them in their school work.

Harland Mead has been dean of Washington Junior College since it was instituted in 1927 and has rendered untiring and efficient service to all those students and faculty members with whom he has worked.

He has had foresight into the progress and advance of education and has initiated those things that are new and worthwhile in the educational field.

For his ability as instructor, his understanding of the problems of young people in college and his ortho-saste for progress and ceaseless effort to bring college opportunities to more young people in the surrounding communities the students and his associates are grateful
